This is a book about how challenging it can be to stand out and about how having siblings can be both the best and worst thing in the world. Both Ada and Andrine have started playing soccer on the Sunndal boys' team. But not everyone likes it, because what is it about these two girls that makes them think they can get special treatment? Andrine becomes afraid that little sister Ada might not be good enough - what will people think of her then, could it jeopardize her own position? Ada helps her friend Kim hide a secret at the clubhouse. When Andrine discovers it, she becomes even more worried. If anyone finds out what Ada is up to, they will definitely be kicked off the team, both of them.

This is the second book in the series, written by Harald Rosenløw Eeg, along with Ada and Andrine Stolsmo Hegerberg. The sisters are among Norway's most famous football players. Ada was named Europe's best female football player for her performance in the 2015/2016 season, and received the Ballon D'or in 2015. Both sisters have played for European powerhouse clubs and the Norwegian national team.
